Citizens Speak Out at SRO Meeting on Sewage By Water Resources Board

It was standing-room only – and for a period of three hours – at last week's public hearing held by the State Water Resources Control Board at the Monterey City Hall.

The subject was future sewage disposal from the 12-county San Francisco-Sacramento area, what to do about it, and just how its disposition might affect Monterey County shoreline areas.

The audience was large, interested, articulate – and willing both to hear and be heard.

Some two dozen speakers heard by the Board made two points chrystal clear: Don't let sewage from the big-population areas to the north of us compound the already difficult sewage disposal problems of Central Coast cities and counties; and secondly, be sure that decisions reached do not imperil the ecology of the sea around us.

Directing the Board's attention to an immediate and specific problem, Carmel attorney Francis ("Skip") Lloyd urged the Board to initiate action to stop the Carmel Sanitary District from accepting any Pebble Beach sewage until improvements are completed at its treatment plant. Lloyd said the Carmel Sanitary Board planned to begin accepting Pebble Beach sewage in December, although its planned plant improvements will not be completed until next August. Hearing officers listened to Lloyd, but did not point a course of action for their state board.

Main purpose of the hearing was to get public reaction to recommendations contained in a three-million-dollar study known as the Kaiser report, which – among many other things – points to the possibility of constructing an immense sewer outfall line into the sea opposite San Mateo county.

Discussion of the effects of such an outfall line both upon life in the sea and upon life inland from the sea, brought to light a lack of specific knowledge about the direction of flow of determinative near-shore ocean currents.

Dr. Warren Denner, Navy School oceanographer, said some limited study had been made locally by his institution, but a great deal still needs to be done just to get indispensable minimum data about such matters.

Carmel City Councilman Herbert Blanks pointed out, as did many other speakers, that a great deal more study is needed before valid decisions can be made about waste disposal for the huge San Francisco-Bay Delta area.

Right-of-way Application Occupies Planning Group

Members of the Carmel Planning Commission heard a report presented by Assistant City Administrator Ralph Cowen concerning the long-discussed restaurant proposal for Sunset Center, at last week's meeting, and were informed that that proposal had been rejected by the City Council because of prohibitive fire insurance costs.

The restaurant application of Tom King of Capitola for the Sunset Center location had come before the Commission at an earlier meeting, in advance of its presentation to the City Council for final decision.

Cowen said he had informed King of the Council action and that King had made no comment about it. Neither King nor the City of Carmel were in a position to bear the added insurance cost – somehwere between $3,500 and $5,00 a year – which would have become due if a restaurant were to be established at Sunset.

The Planning Commission was faced with a difficult policy decision in trying to decide what action to take on a request by Mrs. Dorothea Anderson to legalize an existing lot split with two separate residences already located on the lot. Access to one home could be gained only by allowing a right-of-way across the other. Though deploring that building permits had been erroneously issued many years ago to permit this development, the Commission also recognized the hardship which would result if the Commission were to refuse to give its approval, because Mrs. Anderson now wished to sell one of the two homes, which are located on Vizcaino between Mountain

Gifted Children's Week Gains Lyceum Support

Monterey Peninsula Unified School District is observing National Gifted Child Week, October 25-31, 1969. The district has had a program for academically talented children since 1961.

Mrs. Irene (Joseph) Broadman, MPUSD resource teacher for the academically talented, said that MPUSD programs are tailor-made to suit the particular talents and interests of children identified as gifted. These are children who demonstrate unusual aptitude for reading or mathematics or unusual proficiency in drawing, music, or other art forms at an early age.

The state funds the program for two percent of the participating school enrollment, an amount per child for testing and for program. MPUSD has extended the coverage to the upper ten percent of each elementary school.

Mrs. Broadman works closely with each principal and the teachers of each school, and with the school psychologists, to plan specific programs. Many of these are accomplished through the Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula which draws upon community resources and which offers special seminars to students in junior and senior high school also.

Recent examples of cooperative programs in elementary school are a leadership training course and the Junior Great Books discussion groups.

Mrs. Broadman returned this fall from a sabbatical leave during which she visited gifted centers in the U.S., Britain and Scandanavia. She has been invited to be a special observed at this week's colloquium in Carmel sponsored by the Lyceum and the State Department of Education.

MPUSD's kindergarten-grades 1-6 enrollment is about 11,400, so more than 100 pupils from the district's 22 elementary schools are involved in the gifted program.

A long-pending draft of an ordinance to spell out rules to be met by builders when constructing driveways, finally proved acceptable to the Commission, and was forwarded to the City Council for its decision.

A letter from the San Francisco law firm which represents the 15-acre Flanders Estate which is located on the eastern boundary of the City, was read to the Commission. It indicated that Estate planners had proposed a subdivision formula for the property which had been disapproved by the Commission, and that the land was now on the market.

Witter Report On Bonds

With interest rates at record levels, 1969 hasn't been a very good year for bond prices. Many investors, as a result, hold bonds whose present market prices are much lower than when the bonds were originally purchased.

Taylor Returns From Fact-Finding Educational Tour Of Jordan

Dr. Harris Taylor, superintendent of the Carmel Unified School District, has returned from a trip to Jordan, where he was an educational consultant to the government.

He said when he saw the Carmel district again, in the light of his previous experiences, that the buildings and the quality of staff here were better than they had ever been. "It's good to be back after a system fifty years behind ours. It brings everything into focus," he observed.

Dr. Taylor was a member of a fact finding team which included economists, architects, and other instructors. The team was asked to assist the Jordanians in improving their efforts to build educational facilities that would not become obsolete. The project involved a study of grades one through college.

The Jordanian program dealth with a wide variety of problems, including how to best make use of already existing facilities and upgrading vocational programs and audio visual instruction.

"Arab countries compare their programs with one another and get into interesting traps," Taylor reported. "They must learn to look at their program according to what their own goals are."

A major difficulty of the Jordanian system was the practice of separating students by sex and subject speciality. Schools as a result were small and expensive.

Taylor is planning reports on teacher training and cost effectiveness studies. He feels that the Jordanian government must cluster their schools to make them more economically workable. He has also recommended that schools be used as health centers, and he studied the possibilities of educational T.V. and teacher's aids.

During his stay, Dr. Taylor worked with government officials in Jordan – the ministers of health, public works and the Jordanian development board, which handles all major development projects in the country.

One of Taylor's chief concerns was that Jordan had no pilot schools for research, development, and practical application of the programs that he and his committee were proposing. He felt that his findings should be tried and evaluated before they were adopted on a large scale.

The government of Jordan is planning to prepare an application for a world bank loan to finance school construction. They wanted any educational reform that needed to be done initiated before they received their grant. Thus, requests would reflect purposes and they could plan what sort of educational system was needed.

Dr. Taylor reported that the Jordanians were enthusiastic about his committee's proposals and have adopted them. Whether they will execute them effectively is something else, though.

"I think we were, according to the Jordanians, successful in our endeavor," Taylor concluded, "but we should go back in a year or two years and see."

Librarian's Notebook

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg, City Librarian

Those who enjoyed Gina Cerminara's two earlier books Many Mansions and The World Within, will welcome his new one which is entitled Many Lives, Many Loves.

It is a study of reincarnation from various standpoints. These include psychology, clairvoyance, common sense, literature, and just plain love. The thing which makes the work notable is the pervading sense of love which is plain all through the book. Reading it is a pleasure and comforting, whether or not you accept the doctrine of reincarnation.

To establish a theatre or a museum is only the first step in a continuing drama. The next and hardest step is to provide it an audience.

This is the step which Bradley Morison and Kay Fliehr took for the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre in Minneapolis and it was a giant step. Morison/Fliehr Associates was a consulting firm specializing in arts organizations. They have now written a book about it and the title is In Search of an Audience.

Here in black and white is a record of their work and their success, the facts, names, numbers, and plans. There must be local groups which could use this book to advantage.

The largest living terrestrial carnivore is the Kodiak bear who lives on Kodiak Island, Alaska. He is larger than the grizzly or the brown bear, and he often reaches a weight of 1,500 pounds. Roger Caras tells the story of one such bear, named Monarch by the people of the area. The title of the book is Monarch of Deadman Bay. Mr. Caras may well be remembered by those who read his book The Custer Wolf.

The story of Monarch is enriched by the author's knowledge of the wild life of the Kodiak area, for the book teems with information about bears, birds, sea lions, whales, land and water, all told without sentimentality which is the treacle of the common run of animal books. This is one you will really enjoy.

The passion for yoga seems to be moving in ever widening circles. Comes now a book by Richard Hittleman who has a television program called Yoga for Health. This book is called The Yoga Way to Figure and Facial Beauty and it is full of photographs of slim young people doing the exercises and eating the right food in order to get more slim and more beautiful.

Not much here for us little old ladies. Oh well....

The last book for today is a sheer must. Entitled An Empty Spoon, it was written by Sunny Decker, a girl who taught a group of older-teen-agers in an all-Negro high school in Philadelphia.

She taught for two years and she says she learned more from her students than they did from her. The title is from a poem written in 1574 by Stefano Guazzo. It goes thus:

> I went about to > fil your > mouth with an > empty spoone;
> That is to seeme
> to teach,
> not to teach.

The thing that really rings in this book is the author's honesty, her frank telling of her own failures and successes. She must be a delightful, devoted person.

There were more books I meant to mention, but they must wait for another time.

Peace.

Nickel B. C.

Primitive peoples considered meteoric iron a rare and valuable metal, not realizing it was its high concentration of nickel that made it special. This high nickel content explains the good state of preservation of certain primitive artifacts unearthed by archeologists through the years.

Consumer Power

By Yvonne Earnst

Before we get into a discussion of recipes this week, I would like to remind you that, as published here last month, I have printed a newsletter on "refunding" which is available to you if you will send ten cents and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope to 1213 Leahy Rd., Monterey 93940.

The newsletter will expalin to you how to start bringing back into your billfold $5, $10, $15 or more that you spend on groceries every month. Almost all the major companies in the grocery field use the offer of refunds as part of their advertising programs. The average store has from 50 to 200 items on the shelves that are "refundable" today, depending on how many "brand name" products are stocked.

As the supply of newsletters is decreasing rapidly, please write before Nov. 8 if you would like to have one.

Now, let's review the dietary weapons we can use in our war against high meat prices. ¼ lb. lean, boneless meat (or poultry or fish) or ½ lb. with bones or fat are matched in protein content by any of these foods – 3 eggs, 2 oz. natural cheese, ½ cup peanut butter, 3 tbsp. brewer's yeast, 1/3 cup sunflower seeds, 2 cups fresh milk, ½ cup cottage cheese, 1½ cup cooked split peas, 1¾ cup cooked dried beans, ½ cup instant dry skim milk, ¼ cup spray-dried skim milk, ½ cup wheat germ, ¼ cup soy grits or soya flour.

These are listed in order of cost per gram of protein, ranging from 24 cents for the meat to 3 cents for the soya flour. All the foods listed after fresh milk cost less than 10 cents for amounts equivalent to 24 cents worth of meat protein. It is easy to see why these foods are valuable to the economy-minded, nutrition-wise consumer.

As mentioned last week, you should remember that the peanut butter, beans and peas should be accompanied, in the same meal, by one of the other protein foods so that their incomplete protein content can be fully utilized by our bodies. Try sweetened, toasted wheat germ or sunflower seeds mixed with peanut butter in a sandwich. And serve some form of cheese or even a milk-and-egg dessert in a meal where beans are featured.

When cooking beans it is unnecessary to soak them first. Instead, heat water to boiling, and drop the beans in slowly so that boiling does not stop. As in popping corn, the starch grains burst and break the outside covering of the legume.

Then, lower the temperature, and simmer until tender. The cooking time will be shorter if you remember not to add salt, molasses or fat – not even a ham bone – until the very end of the cooking process. All of these seasonings retard water absorption into the beans, lengthening cooking time. And they will do just as good a job of seasoning when added for just the last half hour.

Also, remember never to add baking soda to beans or any other foods, as was often advised in the past, as it destroys B vitamins ou bodies need.

Cottage cheese is one c the familiar high-protei foods that is wonderfull adaptable to casserole sauces, and desserts. Spi cottage cheese in th blender with some milk an lemon juice – or buttermil – and you have a rival fo sour cream that is both hig in protein and low i calories.

One of my family' favorites is a meat-chees "pie." This can have a crus on the bottom of any kin – pastry, biscuit dough, c one of the refrigerate dough products. Calori conscious, I usually omi the crust, but if you us one, sprinkle ½ cup ra wheat germ over the th dough before adding th meat mixture, and you wi be adding as much protei as an extra ¼ lb. of mea Bake for 5 min. at 42 degrees before removing t add wheat germ and mea mixture.

Saute a small amount o ground beef with choppe onion. Vary any of thes amounts to suit your budge and family size. Drain of any grease. While sautein the meat, mix in a sma bowl about 1 cup cottag cheese, two slightly beate eggs, salt, pepper, som dried or chopped parsley fo flavor, and maybe ¼ cu parmesan cheese. It woul also be a good idea t include 1 tbsp. wheat gerr and dry milk if you hav them on hand.

While in England, Wright renewed acquaintances with several of his friends including silent film stars Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyons. He also visited Bessie Love, another silent screen star who is currently playing the mother of Isadora Duncan in the film The Loves of Isadora.

Honors For Middle School Streamline Readers

The Carmel Middle School Streamline Reading Association has been awarded a Plaque of Honor by the International Reading Association, a world-wide organization of authors and educators.

Dr. Donald Cleland invited the members of Middle Schools intensive reading group to attend the Anaheim symposium, a singular honor for Middle School. The children will be able to stay with children their own age in the Anaheim area.

At a meeting Wednesday, Oct. 22 at Middle School, the local association welcomed Dr. Cleland, president-elect of the international group.

Dr. Cleland reported on the I.R.A. reading conference that will be held from May6-9 next year in Anaheim. The program will be attended by 600 to 700 participants from all over the world. Its theme will be "Reading and the Individual."

The Streamline Reading program has been in effect at Middle School for the past five years.

It is an elective course that has enabled children selected by I.Q., reading scores, and teacher evaluation to study and explore various programs in reading.

The children have studied careers in reading such as publishing, teaching and writing for publication.

They have covered the reading problems they will encounter in high school and college and have planned studies geared toward better understanding of the key events of the current year.

In 1968, for example, a study of political writing was made, and the children read and evaluated viewpoints of the various candidates for political office.

Other studies carried out in intensive reading classes have been investigations of speed reading and speed listening techniques through the use of accelerated listening tapes. The class also studied typing and shorthand to determine if these skills would be useful at the junior high school level.

The final analysis of their study resulted in a divided opinion. Some of the students concluded that typing and shorthand skills were necessary in a compact and specialized world, while others felt that the skills were useful but could be learned and used more effectively in high school.

Perhaps the most important project of the streamline readers has been its tutoring program. For the last five years the group has been helping underachieving readers on a one to one relationship.

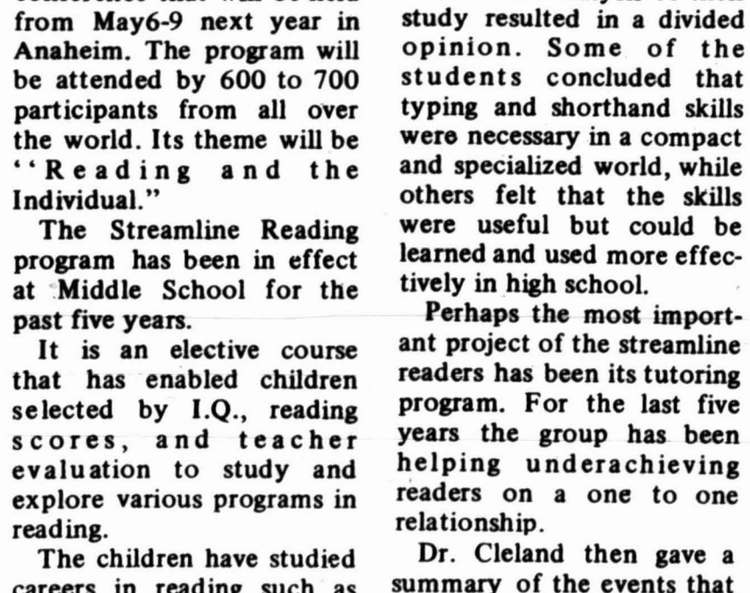
Dr. Cleland then gave a summary of the events that will be included in the symposium. He reported that three hundred booths would be set up to display reading materials from contributors around the world. There will be several banquets and the I.R.A. committee is hoping to invite a famous children's author to be guest speaker.

Prior to the official start of the convention, reading specialists will meet to discuss advancements in such specialized reading areas as reading for the blind, deaf, and mentally advanced.

Miss Jo Brazell , language arts teacher at Middle School, will be the chairman of a forum on reading for the gifted child at the conference.

An added guest of the meeting was Mrs. Vivian Breck, author of Maggie and other children's books.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Miss Brazell and the students presented Dr. Cleland a check for the I.R.A. building fund.



NEW BOOK – Mrs. Phyllis Jervey and Nelo Drizari discuss Mr. Drizari's autobiography, "Four Seas to Dreamland." Guests at the cocktail party given by Mrs. Heaton Randall to honor the author included' novelist Mona Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coyne, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Martin Skaalegaard, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Brown, Mrs. Norma Lazarini, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn O. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Alden Gilcreast, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jaxon, Mr. Richard Louis, Mrs. Laraine Rigsby, Mr. Paul Hallinan, Miss Rosemary Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nielsen, and Mrs. Phyllis Jervey.

School Board Reports On Maintenance Progress

Carmel Unified School District business manager Walter Hinton reported to last week's board members that the district is on schedule in terms of maintenance in all school districts.

The 1967 tax override maintenance package is financing blacktopping of playgrounds and roads, the installation of new equipment on playgrounds and roads, the installation of new equipment on playgrounds, landscaping and improvements to school buildings.

According to Hinton, 75% of maintenance work has been completed and the end is definitely in sight.

Hinton proposed that school administrators should put maintenance specifications together for all the schools in the district and handle the most critical renovation projects first. He proposed discussing a comparative study with the principals of the schools and then advertising for bids.

"Studies have been made comparing operating and repair costs with other districts, but the Carmel district is still awaiting word from the State Board on the results of these figures," Hinton reported.

In other board action, Charles L. Dawson, recreation director, stated that recreational swimming programs had been extremely successful during the past summer. Various organizations are requesting year round swimming activities, but it has been difficult to recruit personnel for these programs.

Dawson's report also covered recreational activities such as basketball, drama, playground activities and sports for children and adults. Many of these programs are currently being held utilizing facilities in the various district schools.

The School Board approved a substitute teacher list and proposed the appointment of members to a citizens' committee on drug usage. The board planned a meeting to contact various establishments on the Peninsula to recruit members for this committee.

Two organizations of teachers, the Association of Carmel Teachers and the Carmel chapter of the American Federation of Teachers were certified as eligible to represent employees of the district.

The members of the board authorized letters of acknowledgement to be sent to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Scanlon for their contribution of $250 for 45 sets of Great Books to be used by primary students of River School. A letter was also authorized for the Parent-Faculty club of River School who donated $210 for a sound film strip and sound film strip projector.

Ferro Exhibit At Crown

Paco Ferro, Spanish born artist, and a long time resident of Carmel, will hold a one-man exhibition at the University of California in Santa Cruz.

His paintings will be shown at Crown College from Nov. 4 to the end of the month. They will be displayed both in the lounge and in the library.

Born in Granda, Paco Ferro left Spain shortly before the outbreak of the civil war, going to New York where he studied painting at the Partt Institute.

Later he became an art instructor in that school. He served in teh U.S. Armed Forces during World War Ii, settling in Carmel after the war.

He has held a number of exhibitions throughout California over the past years and a number of his paintings are in private collections hereabout.

Critics who have viewed his work have been unanimous in praising his highly personal style, although some have linked his work with artists as far apart as Odiln Redon and Picasso, while recognizing that he escaped all labels, since none would fit his personal form of expression and his palette.

'Someone Waiting' Brings Murder, Revenge To Circle Theater Oct. 31

A company of seven talented performances make up the cast of Emlyn Williams suspense chiller, "Someone Waiting," which will open Friday, Oct. 31, at the Circle Theatre as the second play of the 1969-70 Community Theatre season.

Bob Lotz, who won the Golden Bough Award as Best Supporting Actor of the Year for his performance in "Ten Little Indians," will play the mysterious Mr. Fenn, a mild-mannered father who is transformed into an avenging fanatic, when his son is hanged for a crime he did not commit.

James Sweeney will create a chilling character study of Martin, a young man studying law, who forms a fool-proof murder pact with the cunning Mr. Fenn. Jim is a graduate of the MPC drama department and the Perry-Mansfield Theatre Training School at Steamboat Springs, Colo.

Gertrude Chappell, winner of the Best Actress of the Year Award for her performance of Eleanor of Aquitaine in "The Lion In Winter," has been cast as Vera Nedlow, a woman who attempts to hide a terrible family secret. This production will mark Mrs. Chappell's 33rd play at Circle Theatre.

Roy Baxter will portray the unscrupulous John Nedlow, a man hated by his adopted son, who becomes a target for murder. Roy won the Golden Bough Award as Best Actor of the Year for his portrayal of Henry II in "The Lion in Winter."

Jean McBride, another award winner as Best Actress in a musical comedy, will this time be seen as Hilda, the maid, who finds herself in the wrong place at the wrong time. She falls into the trap and finds herself alone with the murderer whose tie is being neatly wrapped around her neck.

Winner of the Best Actress in a Supporting Role, Betty Fowlston will have the role of Mrs. Danecourt, the woman from Soho who arrives unexpectedly and talks her way out of being murdered without even knowing she's in danger.

Ruth Fry, whose countless hours of volunteer backstage service to the Community Theatre was recognized with a Certificate of Appreciation from the Board of Governors at the recent Awards Dinner, will find herself on stage this time in the role of the shy, quiet, secretary Miss Lennie, an innocent victim caught in a web of murderous intrigue.

"Someone Waiting" is scheduled to play Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m., and on Sundays at 7:30 p.m. for six weekends.

Reservations and group discount bookings are now available by calling 624-2669.

ICE STATION ZEBRA

'Ice Station' Top Film Fare

"Ice Station Zebra" now playing at Cinema 70 in Del Monte Center, is a picture that truly demands the huge screen of Cinerama.

Robert Hoag has done a magnificent job with the special effects, and everything else in the picture seems to take a back seat.

The ghostly submarine, commanded by Rock Hudson, works its way under the ice to the vicinity of the North Pole, and the scenes of the sub moving past huge upside-down pinnacles of ice almost makes you shiver to watch.

The cast handles the operation of the submarine with knowledgable ease, and the closed circuit TV screens, the oscilloscopes, sonars, and radars are handled with such deft direction by John Sturges that there is no fakiness or overemphasis so commin in submarine pictures.

The young French composer and director, Michele Legrand has done a masterful job with the score. His music is brilliant and descriptive without intruding on the picture.

This screen version of the novel by Alistair MacLean is a far cry from the typical spy-suspense-nick-of-time cliff hanger. The picture has a vigorous cast, headed by Hudson and including Ernest Borgnine, Patrick McGoohan and Jim Brown.

Good stuff, well done, and one of the areas great entertainment buys.

Twin Bill To Studio Next

The Studio Theatre-Restaurant will have as its next attraction the twin bill "Black Comedy" and "White Lies" which open Nov. 7.

Called "an evening of tricks" by their author, Peter Shaffer, they practice a deception that beguiled Broadway audiences for 337 performances two seasons ago.

"Black Comedy" takes place in the apartment of an impecunious sculptor on the night when he and his fiancee have invited her father, a Col. Blimp type, to a carefully staged meeting designed to demonstrate that the young man is good matrimonial timber.

Unfortunately, the decorator whose valuable pieces they have purloined returns ahead of time, a former girl friend joins the party and the wealthy art patron who was to impress the father gets confused with an electrical repairman. The latter is involved with the slapstick gimmick running through the play that the action is lighted when supposedly taking place in the dark and vice versa.

"White Lies" is an ingenious curtain-raiser that finds two young men visiting a fortune-teller with results quite different from their expectations ro the audience's.

The New York production of the double bill had such distinguished players as Geraldine Page, Michael Crawford and Lynn Redgrave and drew rave reviews from the critics.

Under the direction of Bill Asp, "Black Comedy" and "White Lies" will be on view at the Studio on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings from Nov. 7 through Dec. 13. Reservations for dinner and show or show alone are available at 624-1661 or 624-2321 for all performances.

Movie Review

I Am Curious, (Yellow) Here it is. the Swedish film that has raised such an uproar. Satire mixes with interesting explorations of Swedish culture with notoriously explicit sex scenes. Not worth the fuss that has been raised over its legitimacy. At the Hill.

The Loves of Isadora – Vanessa Redgrave brings a graceful, majestic performance to this screen biography of the legendary American dancer. She defies the morality of the early 1900's with, among others, Jason Robards and James Fox. At the Carmel Village Theater.

Ice Station Zebra – Exciting adventure yarn about submarines, spies and the North Pole. The special effects are outstanding, particularly on the big screen. An all star cast headed by Rock Hudson. John Sturges directed. At the Cinema 70 in Del Monte Shopping Center.

If It's Tuesday, This Must Be Belgium – Suzanne Pleshette cavorting amid lush color views of Europe's most splendid places and things, plus a few skilled acting performances. Lots of top stars in cameo roles. At the State.

The Lion in Winter – I'm really not capable of intelligently reviewing this piece, since I consider it one of the greatest motion pictures of all time. Audrey Hepburn won an Oscar for her Eleanor, and deservedly so. Superb screen fare. At the Valley Cinema.

Take the Money and Run – Woody Allan just has to stand there and he's funny. When he writes the story, directs the picture in which he stars, the result is sidesplitting comedy, tinged with intellect and sometimes downright brilliant. At the Steinbeck.

The Oblong Box – Vincent Price and Edgar Allan Poe lock horns in this horror flick laced with a satisfying amount of gore. African revenge rotten curses and all good stuff like that. At the Marina Automovie.

Bullitt – A perennial favorite staring Steve McQueen, Robert Vaughn and Jacqueline Bisset. Crackling cops and robbers thriller in which detective McQueen is in charge of protecting a hoodlum slated to testify at a Senate hearing. At the Grove.

Easy Rider – This latest motorcycle epic stars Peter Fonda and Dennis Hooper as hippy-type youths in search of America. Aspects involving drugs and sex lead to this film being awarded first prize at the Cannes Film Festival. At the Regency.

Spirits of the Dead – Federico Fellini's touches of humor and humanity make this production of a trio of Edgar Allan Poe's horror stories the best of the lot. Louis Malle and Roger Vadim directed the other two with a somewhat heavier hand. At the Automovie in Marina.

Hell In The Pacific – A powerful story about an American and a Japanese alone on a deserted Pacific island during WW II. The usual situation forms the background for this psychological drama. At the Golden Bough.

Stage Review

"Don't Drink the Water" – the Studio Theatre-Restaurant in Carmel.

Political hi-jinks in an American Embassy somewhere behind the Iron Curtain. The Hollanders, just plain folk from New Jersey, are mistaken for spies and take refuge in the Embassy. Plot revolves around the hilarious efforts in behalf of their escape back to the States. Sam and Edie Karas are outstanding as the Hollanders, and they make this Woody Allen comedy a delight to behold. The play moves primarily through dialogue, and great dialogue at that. The Karas' play each line for all it's worth, milking every nuance of comedy from their parts. For reservations call 624-1661. Curtain at 8:30 except Sunday, one hour earlier

"From the Preserving Kettle"

PARTY PLANS . . .

by Phyllis Jervey

What better money-maker for church or club than a food sale? This is surely so at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel.

On Thursday Nov. 13 between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., the Christmas Bazaar takes place. Churchwomen are now busy at work preparing their particular specialties.

The kitchen of Mrs. Charles K. Felder is redolent with the fragrance of fruits and spices these days. Willing helpers gather to make preserves and relishes (among these is your Party Plans editor) under Mrs. Felden's knowledgeable supervision.

These will be sold at the St. Ursula Guild's booth in the Parish hall and patio. There is a splendid "Pantry Shelf" where wine-vinegar, cookies, pies and cakes are in abundance. The fresh vegetable and fruit display is also much in demand as always.

We are especially interested in the contents of Mrs. Felder's preserving kettle. After you have purchased these "samples" at the bazaar, you'll no doubt wish you had the recipes to make a supply. Food gifts from your own kitchen are the most flattering and personal of Christmas gifts.

And so, we're very pleased to share the following secrets for homemade preserves from All Saints' parishioners. During the upcoming holidays, meals are more festive with tender, crisp pickles and the clear scent of vinegar, spices and sugar made into jellies of every shade, from the pale tawny red of early apple to the deep purple of wild blackberry.

Mrs. Felder's
Rhubarb Conserve

Four cups chopped fresh rhubarb; 6 oranges with rind, 2 lemons with rind, ground together; 1 medium can crushed pineapple; broken walnuts or pecans; 1/2 lb. white raisins; 4 cups sugar.

Cut unpeeled rhubarb into 1-inch pieces. Grind oranges, lemons, raisins and pineapple, if the crushed kind is not used. Add sugar, cook with the fruit juices very slowly until thick being careful not to scorch by stirring often. Add nuts, broken with ones fingers 5 min. before removing from stove.

Pour into hot jelly glasses and seal at once with paraffin, or pint Mason jars may be used, sealing while hot. This is so good for breakfast with toast as its tartness resembles a not too sweet marmalade. Makes 6-8 medium glasses.

The P.G. and E.'s
Cranberry-Strawberry
Preserves

Four cups prepared fruit (1 lb. fresh cranberries and 2-10 oz. pkgs. frozen strawberries, thawed,); 4 c. (1-3/4 lbs.) sugar; 1 box powdered fruit pectin.

Grind cranberries. Combine thawed strawberries; measure 4 cups into a 5 qt. saucepan. Measure sugar and set aside. Mix fruit pectin into the fruit in saucepan. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil.

Immediately add all sugar and stir. Bring to a full boil for 1 min., stirring constantly. Remove from heat and skim off foam using metal spoon. Continue to stir and skim for 5 min. in order to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover at once with 1/8 inch hot paraffin. Makes 8 medium glasses. What a lovely Christmas color!

Mustard Pickle
(Marion Gillmore)

Two qts. green tomatoes; 1 bunch celery; 1 cauliflower; 6 green peppers; 1 qt. onions; 1 cup salt; 3 qts. water; 1 cup flour; 8 t. dry mustard; 1 t. tumeric; 1 cup sugar; 5 cups weak vinegar.

Cut vegetables into 1-inch pieces. Separate cauliflower and stand in boiling water a few minutes. Drain. Mix all vegetables and over them pour a brine made of salt and water. Let stand overnight, then drain. Cook slowly until tender. Drain.

Mix flour, mustard, tumeric and sugar to a paste with vinegar and cook over hot water. Stir, add vegetables to sauce and cook until well heated. Seal tightly in small jars.

Marvelous with fish and chips instead of tartar sauce.

Hayden Salad Relish

Four qts. ripe tomatoes; 4 qts. cabbage; 1 qt. onions, all chopped coarsely before measuring; 6 chopped green Bell peppers (seeds and membrane removed); 1/2 c. salt.

Mix and let stand 1 hour; drain well and add to this: 2 tsp., each, powdered cinnamon, dry mustard, allspice, cloves, tumeric; 2 t. celery seed, 3 lbs. sugar, 1 T. powdered ginger; 1/2 gal. vinegar.

After mixing, boil 40 min. and seal while hot. Stir as usual to prevent burning, and "boil" in this case, means at a very slow careful pace. This makes about 14 pints.

At All Saints' luncheons and suppers, this mixture is added to mayonnaise with ketchup for a salad dressing on lettuce hearts, served well chilled.

Mimi's Chutney
(Phyllis Jervey)

One pint mild vinegar; 2 lbs. brown sugar; 8 green apples; 2 garlic cloves; 1 lb. seedless raisins; 2 T. preserved ginger; ½ t., each, powdered allspice, cinnamon, nutmeg; cayenne pepper to taste (on the mild side); sliced blanched almonds; ½ pint water; salt; 8 green pears; 1 t. mustard seeds; 1 lb. currants; 4 dry small hot chilies, seeds removed; paraffin.

Christian Science Bible Lesson

"Go ye and learn what that meaneth, I will have mercy, and not sacrifice: for I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance." These words of Jesus are part of this Sunday's Christian Science Lesson-Sermon titled "Everlasting Punishment."

A passage from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy explains that Jesus "rebuked sinners pointedly and unflinchingly, because he was their friend; hence the cup he drank."

New Medicare Payments

Beginning next January 1, Medicare beneficiaries will be required to pay an additional $8 of their hospital bills.

Robert M. Ball, Commissioner of Social Security, noted that the increase in the hospital deductible amount results from a mandatory annual review of hospital bills under the Medicare program.

The review showed that the average hospitalization by a Medicare beneficiary costs about $700. Increasing hospital costs and the general inflation that has been taking place also contributed to the raise in the deductible amounts to be borne by the Medicare beneficiary.

Rev. Hill Named President Of Diocese Committee

The rector of Carmel's All Saints' Episcopal Church, the Rev. David Hill, has been elected president of the Standing Committee of the Diocese of California, the senior post for a priest in the area.

Rector of the parish since 1958, Fr. Hill has served as a member of the Standing Committee for three years. The Committee acts in an advisory capacity to the bishop, and in his absence is the ecclesiastical authority for the church.

Most of the work done is interview and examination of candidates for the ministry.

It is believed that Fr. Hill is the first Episcopal priest to have served in this capacity who did not live in the San Francisco Bay area or San Jose. The term is for one year, until the October 1970 diocesan convention.

Day Requieum At All Saints' Sunday

On Sunday the local Episcopal parish of All Saints will observe its titular festival. At all services names of parishoners and friends who have died in the past year will be remembered at the Holy Eucharist.

"Loyalty Sunday" will also be observed, with pledges for the financial support of the parish in 1970 being received.

Zonta Sale

Gourmet Bake sale as well as many items in the "Green Thumb" department will be offered at the rummage and food sale to be sponsored on Saturday, Nov. 1, by the Zonta Club of the Monterey Peninsula.

Located at the Pacific Grove recreation club, 585 Laurel Avenue, Pacific Grove, the sale will also feature new and used clothing, antiques, household goods, furniture and a boutique department.

Welcome Wagon Club Meets

On Thursday, November 6th, the Welcome Wagon Club of the Monterey Peninsula will hold its regular monthly meeting at 1 P.M. at the La Playa Hotel in Carmel, 8th and Camino Real.

A social hour at 12:30 will precede the luncheon. A demonstration of new fabrics and how to use them will be given by Mrs. Marie Borsella of the Carmel Knit Fabric Co.

All newcomers in the area are invited to attend. Please call Mrs. Wallace Daley at 384-8095 by Monday, November 3 for reservations.

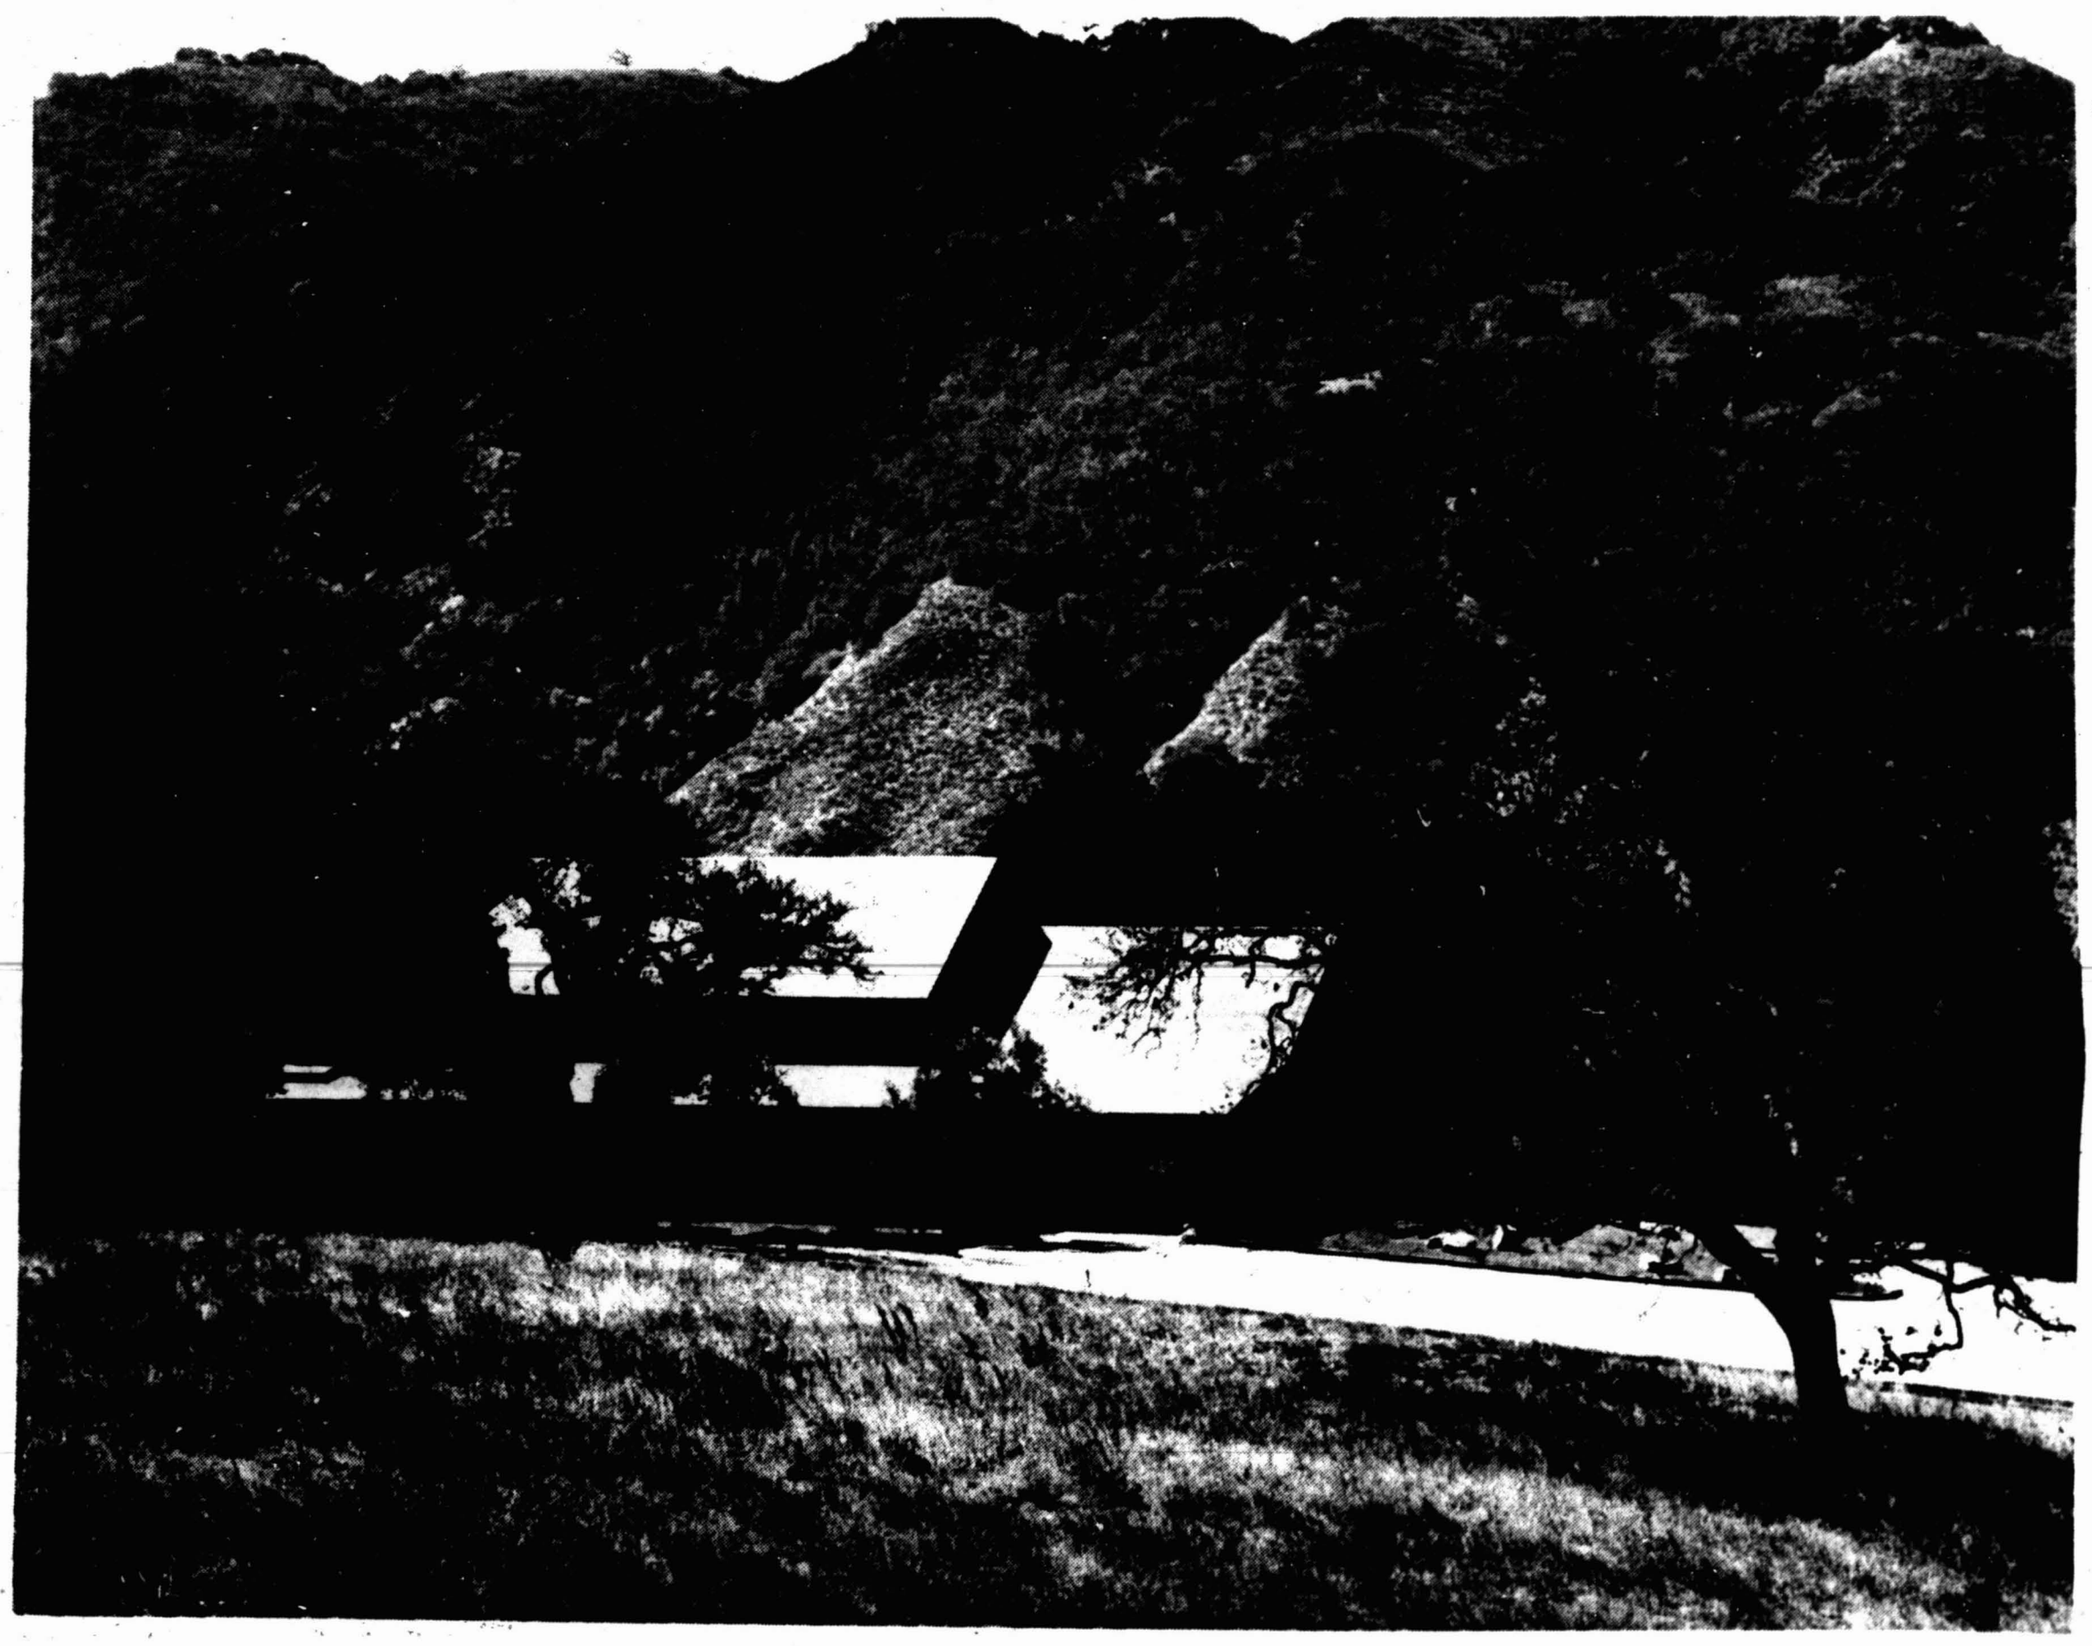
CARMEL VALLEY VILLAGE NEWS



The Tantamount Theatre of Carmel Valley.

Francois Martin and Ralph Geddis, the original Provincetown Puppeteers of Cape Cod – well-known throughout the eastern seaboard, came to Carmel Valley to retire. In their so-called retirement, their artistic spirit could not be stilled. They personally designed and created with their own hands the lovely Tantamount Theatre, set in fabulous natural surroundings. The curtain is painted to depict the various stage roles in their carreers. The Tantamount features rare old and foreign films, almost impossible to see anywhere else.

Goings On

Well, those Marzis have more darned fun. Guess what they have come up with no!

A Raku Party. Down by he river near Billie 'addocks. They and some 30 other people all got ogether and had a real ing-a-ding weekend. Rudy nd Bob Lynn built the kiln of brick and river clay for mortar then everyone got on with being potters, creating loads of fun things using the specially prepared Raku Clay. When night came on the marvelous fragrance of good food ooking and bubbling filled the air, and in due time, the tummies of all those present. Sleep came late to most of the camping potters as "the Firing" of the kiln went on till 2:30 a.m. with Rudy up at 8 a.m. to get on with it for the second day. Seven firings in all. The kiln was indeed the work of a true master mind, i.e., for a bellows, they used a vacumn cleaner in reverse, which kept the dripping diesel oil flaming merrily. Everyone chopped wood to keep the fire fed constantly. The first firings took some 3-4 hours with the last firing taking just half that time. The kiln is all set for another Raku Party, which everyone agreed should be a must . . . .

Helen Barker's lovely painting of Mums in the glorious fall colors grace the Carmel Valley Gallery window this week, which is such a nice touch with the early morning nip in the air. The aura of Christmas pervades the In and Outdoor Shop with its truly exquisite array of gifts of all sizes and prices, for all intents and purposes. Especially lovely are the sparkling lucite wastebaskets, with standing mirror as well as hand mirror, with soap dish as well . . . all matching to maeake for sheer bathroom luxury. Also in a fully matching accessory collection, is a kleenex box wrought in 24 kt. gold filigree. Truly elegant and bound to fill many Christmas needs.

Plans are well under way for the Nov. 7 and 8 weekend 'Ski Whee!' at the Lost Laureles Lodge. Their plans include everything but the snow. Coming here from Tahoe, the Bulmers have loads of their former Ski Lodge guests arriving to kick off the ski season, toting their swim suits in lieu of skis. Macy will put on a Ski and Apres Ski fashion show, with imported as well as domestic togs in colorful array. The Mediterranenean Market is putting on a cheese tasting to compliment the wine tasting that will be part of the festivities on Nov. 8. The Carmel Ski Club is sponsoring the "do" and all the proceeds from a raffle to be held will go to the United States Ski team, with prizes including a weekend in Reno, lift tickets at both Incline Village and Squaw Valley, and oodles of merchandise from Macy's. There will also be Dry Ski instruction, and wet whisk-skiing at he bar. John and Aileen have both enjoyed Retired General Eastwood's reminiscences about his days with MacArthur during his stay with them.

It is most newsworthy to report that Irene Baldwin is back home, instead of having to wait out another three or four weeks at the hospital. True, she must rest a lot, but it is so much more pleasant to do the resting at home. And how lucky that home is Carmel Valley . . . downtown CArmel Valley Village, that is . . . May Youngberg at Town & Country Properties, and Larry Cummings, along with Irene, must be happy with the number of Easterners who are in our midst, eyeing our lovely oak strewn brown hills this time of year sans snow, sleet, and ice. Heard of several who had decided this was THE spot to settle in.

The Plaza Linda is getting new things in their gift shop for Christmas giving . . . all with a bit of Old Mexico flavor, of course. Will's FArgo will only be open another sixty one days, alas. Then flying off to Puerto Vallarta they'll go. The Keeping Room has marvelous Beef Pot au Feu on its luncheon menu during winter. Friday, Saturday and Sunday nites, Dru is serving a Fireside Supper, complete with broth, salad, sour French with spiced butter, entree beverage and dessert . . . goodie things like Hungarian Bell Peppers with sour cream, Stuffed Manicotti, Chicken Paprika, Tamale Pie, etc.

Have a happy week, and come up on the Valley Road to see us.

Who's To Know

The Mehdys are a charming family. Sahly Mehdy is from Egypt and has one of the most beautiful philosophies by which he lives his life. Alice Mehdy is of English extraction, and has that lovely English complection, is rather shy and most self effacing, though she is an excellent artist and block print craftsman. They have two equally winsome children, their boy Gemile, and Mona, the girl. Gemile raises pigeons; Mona has a big sleek black cat that is part Siamese.

It is of interest to note that each parent takes time out to go on a vacation each year separately with the children. They also celebrate a complete family vacation too, though usually just on long weekends, when it is easier to get away. The Oleander Nursery, is of course, their main interest, and it shows the tender loving care the whole family puts into it. It is not easy to leave it 'en masse' since it must be watered and must needs have a sitter. They not only have just about every growing thing that groweth well in this Valley, but in addition, they have a charming private garden one may wander through, filled with "natives." Alice has fun selecting an especially attractive collection of pottery, glass, stoneware, porcelain, copper, brass, and iron planters, flower holders, bonzai containers, and accessories for all types of flower arrangements, and these are housed amoung the indoor plants they grown in their office garden room.

Sahly is very kind and considerate, and has only the soft approach when dealing with problems. He is a "first things first" type of person. His viewpoints always reveal unbiased consideration, and the weighing of all points to be concerned. He is somehow a poet, though he may never have written a line in his life. When the Plaza de Flores idea was first brought to him. by Dru Dunn, his eyes just glowed. He liked the idea, not only because it was a measure of beautification, which pleased his aesthetics, but more, he liked the idea that as a group we would be doing something for others to enjoy in a selfless sort of way.

He rides about the Village in a contemplative way on his bicycle. He smiles and waves as he rolls by, and often stops to pick up a beer can, a scrap of paper, a tired paper napkin crumpled in the diret by the side of the road. He is a one man "Let's Keep It Beautiful" campaign – would that more of us would tidy up the corner where we are – and why not, for if each of us just kept the litter picked up around our own scatter, or when we park the car, and find unsightlies at our feet . . . anywhere we are in the Village . . . it would indeed be rewarding, and help make Sahly feel all of his efforts have not been in vain. Goodness knows he cannot do it all himself, though by his example we should all be inspired to go and do likewise.

Easter in Mallorca

by Joanne Louise Nix

Part VIII

We stood overlooking the cross and the magnificence below, and then we, too, took leave of Father Serra's Pueblo of Saints and the countryside that had inspired him to fulfill a dream and create a bond uniting two lovely cities, Palma and Carmel.

On our way home, we stopped to explore the Caves of Droch near Porto Cristo on the eastern side of the island. Our guide took us deep underground, and we wondered through a moist, humid gallery of figures carved by time. Carrot, candle and icicle-like figures, illuminated by artificial lighting, hung from the ceiling. These were the stalactites that had formed over thousands of years by the slow dripping of calcium carbonate deposits. We took a boat ride across a crystal clear lake to the far side of the cave. The rocks on the bottom seemed near enough to touch, but they were actually many meters below us.

A visit to the caves of Droch is an experience that all visitors to Mallorca should not miss.

April 14
Corrida!

Sunday afternoon we attended a bullfight in Palma. I have been interested and fascinated by the grace and beauty of the Corrida de Toros since childhood, but I had never seen a bull fight and was a bit apprehensive. Many of my friends have told me about bullfights that they had seen that were marred by the inefficiency of the matador. We were, however, fortunate enough to see a fine performance.

Our hotel offered a bus trip to the ring, but a group of us decided to go on our own. Since the day was cool, we bought seats in the sun, the cheapest available, but we had a fine view of the spectacle.

I won't go into an elaborate description of bull fighting here, as any affectionado can read stirring accounts by authors such as Hemingway and Barnaby Conrad, but it was an unforgetable experience.

We took our seats among red hot enthusiasts, the prototypes of American baseball fans, whose comments were salty and vociferous. They whistled when disappointed by the matador's performance, and cheered and oled whenever he performed well.

There were three matadors, and each fought two bulls. The best performance was given by the senior matador, Francisco Rivera (Paquirro), who seemed to be performing a ballet.

Another on the program performed very well, and most important of all, made well executed, clean kills. But the smaltz and style of Paquirro was a joy to watch. During his faena (work with the short muleta or small cape) he pranced before the bull and performed the acts of contempt that the audience, especially the tourists, enjoys so much. He turned his back on the bull, stroked it, and seemed by his bearing to show a complete knowledge of the vicissitudes of the animal. He killed well, and so his performance was not just showy, it was well disciplined.

One lively bull jumped the barrier and then found his way out into the arena again. Perhaps this was due to fear, perhaps it was anger, but it was exciting to the spectators.

I did not attend the bull fight hoping to see gore, but to see grace and skill. I was fortunate enough to see these things and so I enjoyed the experience. The bull fight is a part of Spanish culture, and I accept it and enjoy it as many Americans would accept and enjoy a boxing match, which is violent but requires skill, and is entertaining when artfully performed.

Dance to the Music

Today we made another quick trip to Palma and found a mammoth indoor market covering two floors. On the first were fruits and articles of clothing and on the second eggs, beans, pasta and meats – sqrawny chickens suspended by their legs, huge pigs and steers freshly killed – and in the midst of the produce of field and farm, a supermarket featuring canned goods strangely incongruous amidst the wares displayed in barrels and hanging from vendors' stalls.

And then another visit to the shops near the cathedral and the cathedral itself for further admiration of its lovely altars.

That night we attended a Spanish discotheque. The music and lights and dancing were very much like those anywhere in the world. The group was good, and the music was varied – rock and roll to foxtrot.

Nightclubs here stay open until 3:00 A.M. and unlike the bars, they are very strict about age limits. Eighteen or over is the rule. This made night time activity difficult for the teens in our group who had to go to Palma to find a teen club.

Report From RLS

By George Wing

In observance of the Oct. 15 Vietnam War Moratorium, concerned faculty and student body members held a "town hall meeting" to discuss this pressing American situation.

The meeting, conceived by student body President Richard Johnson, featured the inpressions of RLS Director of Admissions Jefferson Stevens. Stevens served in the Vietnam theater as a chaplain before coming to Stevenson.

Two respected students, Bill Smith and David Haynes, then presented their opposing views under the moderation of Chris Baumgart.

After this introduction, an hour of active discussion took place between members of the audience and primary participants.

The result of the meeting was termed successful.

It is planned to slate more of these "town hall meetings" for the future representing different national problems.

Students attending the SABL school do not receive report cards in this program undertaken on the Stevenson campus this year.

Sept. 8 marked the beginning of classes for the 22 students enrolled in the SABL school.

The school, directed by Mrs. Nancy Bottero, is new to the RLS campus and occupies the old science buildings.

Covering material from the eighth down to the first grades, the school utilizes a concept eliminating grades and emphasizing individual progress and programming.

Besides state required subjects, the SABL program includes field trips to points of interest, guest speakers from various professions, music, art, drama and dance. SABL also provides a wide athletic curriculum including tennis and swimming.

Students of the SABL school conceived the name for their establishment from their motto, "Seeking, Asking, Believing, Learing . . . that which you love."

Principal-teacher Nancy Bottero directs the staff. At San Jose State College Mrs. Bottero majored in sociology. Later she taught for seven years at the college level. She also taught one year of high school and has been for five years director of the SABL program.

Her staff includes part time teachers Mrs. Sharlee DeBow, a graduate of the University of Redlands who has more than 13 years teaching experience and Mr. Judson Vandervere, a graduate of San Francisco State College with 12 years teaching background.

Also included as consultants are Mmnes. Rose Hauer, Marcia Hovick and Laurel Beall.

Mrs. Bottero also has students from MPC and Carmel High working as teacher aids. She hopes to include Stevenson students in the same capacity.

ART OBJECTS — Contemporary American hand crafts were elevated dramatically to the level of art status recently when an unusual collection call "Objects:USA, The Johnson Collection of Contemporary Crafts," opened at the Smithsonian Institution's National Collection of Fine Arts in Washington, D.C. prior to its two-year national tour. Congressman Burt Talcott (left) visited the exhibition to inspect the contribution of local craftsmen to the collection, which was assembled by the Johnson Wax company of Racine, Wis. Congressman Talcott is shown here with Robert Tyler Davis, acting director of the National Collection of Fine Arts, viewing craft objects produced by local constituents Anna Kang Burgess (hanging fiber construction in background) from Carmel-by-the-Sea; James Wayne (blown glass sculpture held by Mr. Davis), and Herbert H. Sanders (ceramic bottle), both from Los Gatos.

Soledad Facility Art Show

The Correctional Training Facility at Soledad will sponsor its annual Arts & Crafts Show and Sale beginning Nov. 14, through Nov. 16 at the institution's Central Facility.

The show will open at 10 a.m. and close at 3 p.m. each day.

The display and sale to the public of those items judged to be the finest examples of arts and crafts produced by inmates at the institution will include oils, pastels, sculpture, furniture, plaques, jewlry, and various plastic and ceramic constructions.

The entries will be evaluated by a panel of four judges: Wayne A. Chezam, arts & crafts instructor of Salinas; Alex Gonzales, painter and instructor at Monterey Peninsula College; Duane Matterson, Monterey artist and school teacher; and Rudolph Marzi, owner of the Monterey Pottery.

The public is invited to visit the institution during the show.

PADRE SPORTS

By Hal Gann

Carmel's varsity football team tallied two touchdowns and four extra points the first two times it got the ball against San Lorenzo Valley at Felton Saturday afternoon, to pile up a 16-0 lead and then coast to a 28-12 conquest.

It was a clean sweep for all three Carmel High squads, the Freshmen winning their third consecutive outing, 28-6, and the local Junior Varsity posting a 30-12 victory.

The varsity tilt was highlighted by halfback Jimmy DeAmaral's 67-yard touchdown scamper, fullback Rick Hall's two long runs off right tackle, and fullback and linebacker Mark Spindler's 40-yard romp for a score on a pass interception.

Gary Cohn, who has settled into the number one quarterback position, mixed the Padre plays well, but Carmel fumbled the ball away seven times. With such loose play, it was a good thing they were up against the winless Cougars rather than their next opponent, a powerful Holy Cross team that Carmel hosts this Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

(Next Padre Sportcast is Saturday afternoon's varsity game, at 4:30 p.m. over Radio KRSA-FM, 100.7 Mc., the Gonzales at Palma contest to be also broadcast, this Friday night.)

The MTAL's top two teams, Palma and Gonzales remained undefeated, the Chieftains outbattling a determined Pacific Grove team, 13-6, and the Spartans turning back Hollister, 6-3. In a real thriller, King City edged Holy Cross, 15-14, as a 25-yard field goal by the Panthers failed in the closing seconds. Carmel's Varsity, now with a 2-2 league mark, is tied for third with King City and Pacific Grove, last year's championship team, and the Padres are ahead of Holy Cross and Hollister who slip to fourth with 1-3 records.

Carmel Head Coach Jason Harbert feels that Palm or Gonzales will win the league, but that no team will end league play undefeated. This gives Padre fans opes for second place, much better than last year's fifth place finish.

"During the past two games, the team is beginning to work as a unit, although I am unhappy with the loose play we showed on offense against San Lorenzo Valley," Harbert said.

He praised Jay Argust's "steady as a rock" play in the SLV game and was happy with the tackling exhibited on defense. Of course, Carmel will miss the services of Senior Steve Taylor lost for the season with a bad arm, and Bryan Robotti will be unable to play for another week, at least.

MPC Trounces Cabrillo, Prepares For Gavilan

By Marc Hinchey

Running back Gary Nakao leads the Gavilan College Rams into Monterey Peninsula College Stadium Saturday night for an 8 p.m. duel with the Lobos that could decide the Coast (JC) Conference football championship.

Both Gavilan and Monterey currently hold 2-0 league records and the game is a must for both squads. The Rams are 5-1 overall, and won last week – downing Menlo 41-21.

The Ram offense has been explosive this season, paced by Nakao, who tops conference statistics in both rushing and scoring. The talented sophomore had tallied 8 touchdowns and gained 582 yards on 104 carries going into the Menlo game. Quarterback Bob Akino ranks fifth in the league in the passing department.

Monterey preserved its unblemished conference mark last Saturday evening, tripping Cabrillo 22-10 in Aptos.

The Lobos had to fight back from a three point deficit in the fourth quarter to come away with the win.

Cabrillo built up a 16-8 halftime lead, and played the Lobos dead even throughout the first half. MPC scored the game's first touchdown on a 7 yard pass from sophomore quarterback Dave Stewart to halfback Mike Mitchem. Jim Donovan latched on to a Stewart pass for the two point conversion and an 8-0 Lobo lead.

However, Cabrillo came right back and quickly got on the scoreboard after driving to the MPC four yard line. Fullback Dave Morgan crashed over from there, and a PAT pass from tailback Clint Dilts to wingback Manuel Araiza tied the contest.

The Seahawks pushed over another TD in the second quarter, when Morgan plowed into the MPC end zone from the three. Dilts provided the extra points on a keeper play.

Led by the rugged running of fullback Brad Kight, the Lobos charged back in the third period, and tied the game up again when Kight scored from the Seahawk one to cap a 60 yard drive, and Bill Stowers made a leaping catch of Stewart's PAT toss.

Cabrillo, winless in its first five games, definitely was out to upset MPC, and the Hawks forged ahead again in the fourth quarter when Jim Olmquist booted a 25 yard field goal.

The Cabrillo defense just could not stop the fired-up Lobos, however. The Wolfpack came right back and went into the lead for good when Kight scored on a four yard jaunt.

Phillips credited the Lobo defensive backfield and offensive line with fine performances. Individuals singled out were defensive backs Dan Hoffman and Jimmy White, linebacker Sandy McFarland, defensive ends Paul Murphy and Tom Segali, quarterback Stewart who completed 11 of 21 pass attempts, and fullback Kight.

The conference title race is now clearly a three team race between MPC, Gavilan and Hartnell. The Lobos must win all of their three remaining contests in order to come out on top, and this week's showdown with Gavilan may decide Monterey's fate. The rams are the major roadblock in Lobo title hopes.

HOW ABOUT HOLDING OUT THAT TACKLE? – Dave Stewart, MPC Quarterback (12) gives his Lobos the next play in last Saturday's game with the Cabrillo Seahawks, which MPC won, 22-10. Number 80 is end Bill Stowers, 75 is tackle Dennis Welch, 64 is guard Sal Poma, and 54 is center Chris Ingalls.

OUTA' THE WAY! – Lobo fullback Brad Kight (32), gives a foot-fake to an onrushing Cabrillo player during Saturday's game with the Seahawks. MPC, which will play the Gavilan on Saturday, Nov. 1, tipped Cabrillo 22-10, and the winner of the Gavilan game will take over the lead in the conference.

Autumn leaves circle the ground
Trapped in death and smoldering brown,
Soon wind and rain will toss them –
In juggler's play, around and around
Then stealthily back to dust, and down.

LIFE

One lone gull . . .
on sea-sucked sand
Quivering . . .
Poised as leaf on green-gold bough
Silent as ship unmanned.
Crash of breakers . . .
Stillness gone,
Flutter of wings unleashed . . .
Footprints sinking,
Sand returning,
Man's last message . . . unbequeathed.

Friendship Garden

Mother has a green thumb
For flowers and people too.
She has a friendship garden
And one of flowering rue.

There is a time for everything
She says and seems to know
When to tender her affection
And when to let things go.

For the rhythm of all growing things
Like flowers and you and I
Is an alternate attention
And a silent standing by.

A friendship must grow slowly
Nor the flower plucked anon.
When it's time the bud will open
And the shyness will be gone.

In friendship garden mother works
As with her flowering rue.
She says it makes her fit to be
A friend and have one too.

And every flower that blossoms there
Begging Nature's pardon
Seems to have its human counterpart
In mother's friendship garden.

– Dorothy Morrison

TWO SIMPLE WORDS

She was.
No other line could tell her days.
No public praises came her way.
She scaled no Alps. She plumbed no depths.
She lived her simple unsung days,
A girl, a woman, and then gone.
A thousand lives like hers have been,
Lost, shouldered by ten thousand more,
And yet are not all lyric things,
Lost, engulged by their crowded more?
A thousand fiery sunsets blaze,
Unsung.
Somewhere, hushed on some noisy shore,
A blissful pearly wave slips in.
Lone silver stars eclipse their rays,
To applique a Milky Way.
The heights and depths are common things,
Colors and sounds, love, sleep, despair,
A dawn, a kiss in tender night,
A hidden leaf, perfection still,
A parting smile that lightens days,
A tree, not high as some that rough the sky.
Unknowns, lost in their thousand forms.
They come, they go, they live, they die.
And so her sum, like theirs, must be,
Two simple words, and yet the sky.
She was.

Make a syrup of vinegar, water and brown sugar. Sprinkle peeled thinly sliced green apples and pears with salt. Add these to syrup. Cook until almost soft with the mustard seed, raisins and currants, minced garlic, chopped ginger, snipped chilies, sliced almonds, seasonings and salt to taste. Put up as usual.

None can surpass this recipe of my mother's, long time of Carmel and All Saints' Altar Guild.

The fruit is green but tastes quite a bit like mangoes which the original West Indian recipe called for. It keeps indefinitely if you have a secret hiding place!

Uncooked Chutney
(Phyllis Jervey)

One lb. dried apricots; 1½ lbs. onions; 4 hot chilies; powdered ginger; 1 qt. vinegar; 1 lb. pitted dates; 1½ lbs. white sugar; powdered nutmeg and cinnamon. Soak apricots in vinegar for several moments. Grind apricots, onions, chilies, (very small ones, dried, with seeds removed) and dates together. Add sugar and vinegar with a pinch of salt. Taste for this. A little melted (clarified) butter, with the spices may be added at your pleasure.

This is the easiest of chutneys which can be made up quickly in small amounts and kept refrigerated. It should, of course, not remain untasted for a long period. Great for currying favor with your friends and relatives at Christmas time. That is, fine for curry dishes or just plain turkey, veal, ham, or what have you?

I shall serve,
quite as an extra,
memories of the summer past." (P.J.)

THE COOL briskness in the air can only be matched by the keen edge it puts on the appetite – like the fragrance of home made chili sauce bubbling, or a good old fashioned beef pot au feu, or a wassail bowl full of split pea soup afloat with sausage rings, which are now on the Keeping Room menu. Also a taste teaser for breakfast is old time "Little Pig Scrapple," a hearty morsel augmented by Vermont maple syrup. Made up to take out also in little loaf pans!

On Oct. 11, 12 and 13, Saturday, Sunday and Monday p.m., Dru will be open for 6:00 p.m. dinner which will provide one sitting with a choice of casserole du jour (tamale pie, stuffed manicotti or supreme of turkey with shortcake biscuit) or a country kitchen soup du jour, or a cheese fondue when the pots arrive.

So come sit by the fire, at a candle-lit table and partake of our toothsome treats at the Keeping Room, with Dru and Minnie Haha the laughing dove, for breakfast, lunch and, only on weekends and Monday, dinner. No. 6 Pilot Road, Carmel Valley Village. 659-2512

Just Listed in Pebble Beach-- A Romantic, Traditional Stone House With English Country Flavor

JUST A COUPLE OF BLOCKS FROM THE LODGE, yet beautifully secluded from neighbors and the roads, a grand old home has been lovingly and completely renovated and restored to its rightful place among Pebble Beach showcase properties.

THE 21-FOOT ENTRANCE GALLERY leads into the living room with its polished Phillippine mahogany wainscoating, beam ceiling, tile and wood-faced fireplace flanked by deep, shuttered and velvet-cushioned window seats overlooking the garden terrace. To the right of the living room, a drawing room where attention focuses almost simultaneously on the massive provincial fireplace with its unusual slap, strap, and iron mantle, and the also unusual 36-paned window reaching to the high cathedral ceiling supported by hand-adzed beams. To the left of the living room, step up to a large and beautifully proportioned dining room with windows to the gardens and old oaks.

THE SUPERB NEW KITCHEN (the owners are gourmets with European background) was planned by the architect to provide a rustic country feeling with the most modern possible appliances and equipment. A truly fabulous spice door conceals a walk-in closet for china; there's a special pots-and-pans closet. Red tile floor, ceiling beamed and papered. Specially designed laundry closet.

OFF THE KITCHEN, the original maid's room is now a handsome study, also reached through the gallery.

THE MASTER SUITE also on the main floor, consists of paneled wardrobe room, all new, with splendid fitted closets, a dressing room and bath, and the lovely bedroom with its French doors to the garden. Thick carpeting, delightful wallpaper and coordinated bed furnishings and window coverings. (And an elegant fireplace!)

UPSTAIRS, there's another master bedroom with its own bath, dressing room, and deck, plus two more bedrooms with gaily papered ceilings and another bath – in all, 4 bedrooms and 4 baths.

THIS IS THE KIND of home noted for grand construction details lost to our modern day – the stone and the stone-masonry, neither available now. The fine dark oak floors, the beautiful millwork throughout, and the interesting mullioned windows. 5 separate entrances give a sense of freedom and independence to all family members. A garage and workshop finished like the house itself would offer expansion possibilities.

THE PRICE IS $175,000. We'd love to show it to you.
